EX-GOV. MOUNT

Dropped Dead of Heart Disease
Wednesday Night.

Retired From The Office of Governor of Indiana at Noon Last Monday.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 16.—James A. Mount, who retired Monday at noon from the office of Governor of the State of Indiana, died very suddenly at 6:45 o'clock to-night in his apartments at the Denison Hotel. He had attended a reception tendered by Mrs. Mount to a number of prominent ladies of the city during the afternoon, and shortly after the guests departed he started out for a walk. Upon his return he said nothing about being ill, and after removing his hat and overcoat sat down to read. In a few minutes he turned to his wife and niece, who were in the room, and said:

"I am sick. It's my heart. Send for a doctor at once."

Dr. O. S. Runnels was called and found those in attendance at Mr. Mount's bedside chatting his feet and hands in an effort to revive him. He knelt down and listened for a heart beat, and rising on his feet said:

"You can do nothing more for him, he is dead."

During the forenoon Mr. Mount visited the office of his former secretary and was in consultation with him several hours. In the afternoon he made a speech before the Indiana State Wool Growers' Association and was elected President of the association. Part of the time he spent in the entertainment of his wife's guests. Three children and Mrs. Mount are the surviving members of the family.

During his term of office Gov. Mount was attacked several times by fainting spells, but none of them were serious. Col. Wilson, who was in the office during his term of office, said tonight:

"Gov. Mount was worked to death. His close application to the duties of his office impaired his health, and until some of the burden is removed from the shoulders of the Governors of Indiana the exaction of the office will kill anybody."

P. church, and will be greatly missed by his many friends as well as by the loved ones at home, who have the sympathy of the entire community. C.

BALDHEADED CLUB.

Watch Meeting Held The Last Night of The Year.

President Cooper Proclaims Himself Dictator And Will Not Allow an Election.

The meeting of the Baldheaded Club on the night of December 31st, proved to be one of the most exciting in the history of the club. Nearly every single member was in his seat, or some body else's seat, and most of the married men who succeeded in obtaining permits from their wives, were also on hand.

It was the regular time for electing annual officers, and no sooner had President Bill Cooper rapped for order than Col. Bill Bamberger secured the floor, or rather enough of it to accommodate his feet, and moved that the club proceed to elect officers.

President Cooper rose to his feet and to the occasion and instead of putting to motion, spoke as follows:

"Under ordinary circumstances I should put the motion just made, but I do not believe it is to the best interests of the Club to hold elections so often. During the ten years of its existence, it has accumulated a job lot of ex-Presidents ranging from my venerable friend Col. Claggett down to the fresh young windjammer who has just assaulted the silence of this solemn occasion with a motion prompted by his own inordinate and ridiculous ambition to run again for President. This club now has, a President who meets all the requirements of his position. In my opinion any attempt to make a change would be disastrous. I don't believe there is any necessity for an election at this time and as we have other business on hand I will declare Col. Bamberger's motion out of order and let the election go over until another year. If any member attempts to appeal from this decision, I will fine him $25 and sentence him to spend a week in the solitudes of Clarksville."

This bold utterance created a profound sensation, the fearful threat with which the Dictator concluded his proclamation paralyzed the vocal organs of every member who essayed to enter a protest. Some of the members who have plenty of money and love to spend it like Col. Ed Gaither, Col. Burch Bassett and Col. Mike Kelly, were willing to throw away $25 apiece, but the fear of having to go to the country for a week kept them from uttering, speaking or articulating a word of objection. Col. Bamberger was visibly and terribly affected. Once he started to rise, but one look from the bewhiskered tyrant in the chair was enough to "squench" him into submission. After a few brief moments of painful silence, the President resumed his seat and pointing to the clock, called attention to the fact that the end of the century was at hand and that within five minutes the club was to witness the birth of the Twentieth century.

This served to divert attention from the suspension of the constitutional provision pertaining to election, and Col. Claggett was invited to make a speech and give his recollection of the similar event that occurred when he was a boy. Col. Claggett came forward with the activity and graceful bearing of a man of 60 or 70 years old, but before he could begin what would undoubtedly have been a very fine speech, a fearful din of multiplied noises broke loose. The ponderous bell in the Court house tower tolled the minutes of fleeting Time. The wind cut whistle of the fire department, shrieked a requiem to the day of year. The sweet-toned bells of many churches chimed a welcome

HIS TOMBSTONE

Waited Two Years for The Death of Ossified Man.

William A. Bloomer, the ossified man who was on exhibition here a year or two ago, died in St. Louis Sunday. He had been becoming more and more thoroughly ossified for the last two and a half years.

The St. Louis Republic says: His troubles began in a severe case of rheumatism. He had been in the hospital for two years and his case was regarded by physicians as the most remarkable of its kind.

Bloomer was an engineer in the United States Navy and served during President Cleveland's last Administration. During his stay at St. Luke's hospital from time to time he made computations as to the date of his death, and so long ago as June, 1899, he did not expect to live into this year.

He was then entirely helpless except he could use his fingers and turn his head on his pillow.

When he entered the hospital he announced that he was suffering from rheumatism. He stated that his work had kept him exposed in weather so severe and variable that he had contracted the disease from which he suffered.

His knee joints were swollen and his skin in spots was becoming dark brown. The physicians decided that this was a case of rheumatoid arthritis.

Gradually the patient's body stiffened, his bones turning to a clay-like substance.

An entertainment was given for Mr. Bloomer several years ago and the proceeds were devoted by the invalid to the purchase of a handsome tombstone, which has now been in position in the Bloomer cemetery for nearly two years.

The invalid kept a photograph of the monument near him in his room and often took pleasure in looking at it.

He felt gratified to know that his last resting place was well and suitably marked.

Gen. John B. Gordon, General commanding, and Gen. Geo. M. Norman, Adjutant and Chief of Staff United Confederate Veterans have issued a circular stating that the annual reunion to be held in Memphis will take place on May 28, 29, 30, 1901.

They announce that 1,300 camps have now joined the association and that applications have been received for over 100 more. A list of 60 new camps, organized since the last report, is given. It had been brought to the notice of the General Commanding that one of the camps had violated the constitution by endorsing an aspirant for a political office. He states that this was possibly caused by ignorance of the constitution and calls their attention to articles 12 and 13, showing the association law in this subject and the objects of the organization.

MUST BE PROTECTED.

The announcement from Washington that the president is determined to insist that the Chinese government shall obey its treaty obligations pledging protection, not only to the Christian missionaries, but to the native Christians, will command universal approval, says the Chicago Evening Post. The treaties repeatedly made between the United States and China have been most specific on this point. The massacre of the hundreds and the thousands of native Christians has been an intentional defiance of the other governments of the world as has been the murder of so many missionaries and the destruction of all their homes and possessions. It is plain that the emperor and his immediate advisers have been at the back of the horrible outrages perpetrated by the "bashibazouk" boxes. The allied powers owe it to civilization to make it plain that the international compact insuring liberty of conscience and security against persecuting violence must be respected. Russia may not take great interest in this matter, but Great Britain, France and Germany, and Japan, also, may be depended upon to be in accord.

PRINCE CHING.
(Chinese Leader Who May Be Made Temporary Regent.)

The following are the terms of the treaty of Tientsin:
The principles of the Christian religion, as professed by the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches, are recognized as teaching men to do good, and to do others as they would have others do unto them. Hereafter those who quietly profess and teach these doctrines shall not be harassed or persecuted on account of their faith. Any person, whether a citizen of the United States or Chinese convert, who, according to these tenets, peacefully teaches and practices the principles of Christianity, shall in no case be interfered with or molested.

These terms are perfectly specific and unmistakable. Their renewed affirmation by the great powers of the world cannot fail to have a salutary effect on the minds of the Chinese throughout the Celestial empire.

AN EXCHANGE OF OVERCOATS.

Little incident led to a remarkable Series of Adventures.

An accidental exchange of overcoats at local restaurants five nights ago, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat, recalled a queer story to an old lawyer who was dining at the other side of the room. "One evening in the early '70s," he said, "a garcon hurrying through a crowded cafe not far from here knocked down two hats that had been hanging above a couple of overcoats on a wall rack. He picked them up and restored them to the pegs, and by that simple act condemned a very estimable gentleman to four years of acute mental torment and started another individual, considerably less estimable, on a road that led eventually to a similar grave. The funny part about it was that the garcon didn't know either man from Adam's house cat. If he had been told, later on, of the trouble he caused he would probably have had a stroke apoplexy. I remember being told that he was rather fat."

"I am something of a student of causation," continued the old lawyer, "and I have frequently amused myself by tracing out the extraordinary consequences of some apparently trifling incident. It is nearly always the shifting of a pebble that brings down the avalanches of social life, and in this case—both I will briefly sketch the facts and you may draw your own conclusion. The fat garcon, as a matter of course, hung the hats over the wrong garments, and a few minutes afterward a young fellow who had just finished his dinner got up and walked out with another man's overcoat. By an odd coincidence it was so much like his own that he wore it for a week without discovering the change. Then one day he felt in the inside pocket and pulled out several letters that were strange to him. I think I could repeat their contents, even now, from memory, but there are no reasons why I cannot be very explicit. Suffice it to say that they put him in possession of certain facts, partly of a commercial and partly of a personal nature, that spelled absolute ruin for the man whom they concerned. As I have already hinted, the young person who stumbled into this information was not a very estimable character, but he had plenty of nerve and shrewdness, and he began at once to plan how he could turn his discovery into cash. Meanwhile the other fellow, who was a quiet, middle-aged business man, had failed to observe that he was wearing somebody else's coat. I may say right here that he never found it out, and died in ignorance of a fact that might have saved him an infinite deal of worry."

"The young man with the incriminating letters was afraid to act personally, because he was in rather a ticklish position himself, owing to numerous shady transactions in the past, and his victim might easily have turned upon him. So he made a tool of a miserable old drunkard who had of late been a shy lawyer, and they proceeded to put on the screws. The business man had missed the letters, of course, but he hadn't the faintest idea of how he lost them, and imagined they had been stolen out of his coat at his office; and that theory, by the way, resulted in the abrupt discharge of several entirely innocent and unsuspecting employes. When the ex-shyster approached him, he promptly flew into a panic and paid the first installment of a ransom almost without a protest. What followed was somewhat commonplace," said the old lawyer, musingly, "and I will merely skeletonize it. In a year or so the ex-shyster succumbed to prosperity, complicated with jinxes, and the man with the letters had to get a new catnap. He picked up a queer character who had been a sort of horse doctor and all-around of the facts, but merely acted as go-between, and used to amuse intervals with a card on which a certain amount would be scrawled in pencil. It seems incredible, but this went on for three solid years. Then one day the victim got desperate and did what he should have done at first—he came over to my office and made a clean breast of the whole affair. I took the bull by the horns. To begin with, I quietly got out a warrant for the fellow's arrest, and when he appeared I gave him 30 seconds to furnish the name of his principal. That secured, I swore out a second warrant and went after the young man myself. 'I want those documents,' I said, 'and also your signature to this confession. He blustered a good deal, but my bluff was the strongest, and inside of five minutes I came after him. He told me he had found the letters on the floor at the post office, and I let it go at that; but I warned him that any further attempt at extortion would result in his instant arrest. There the story proper ends, but there is one thing to add—namely, how I found out the truth about the overcoats. It was very simple. My blackmailing gentleman had become a good deal of a drunk during his years of successful operation, and not long after I put a period to his little game his former victim died. That destroyed any lingering hopes he may have had of renewing the squeeze, and he came to me one day and offered to tell me exactly how he secured the letters if I would give him enough money to go to Chicago. For the sake of clearing the matter up I accepted the proposition, and he related the incident of the coat exchange in Philadelphia. He drifted north with the money I gave him, got on a tremendous spree and killed himself by jumping out of a window."

A BIT OF ROMANCE.

Connected with a Tombstone in a Philadelphia Cemetery.

One would scarcely seek romance in a cemetery, and yet one could not find a more pathetic little love story than that told by the marking of a certain grave in Philadelphia's City of the Dead, says the Press.

In South Laurel Hill the statue of a woman, bearing two babes in her arms, faces southward from the top of a steep rock overlooking the river and East Fairmount Park drive. This monument of love was hewn out by a devoted husband to perpetuate the memory of his cherished wife and infant children.

Henry Dinocowski was a Polish patriot who met Helena Schauf, in the pretty Rhine country of Germany, 50 years ago. It had been his intention to live in Poland, but, aiming to free his native land from the Russian yoke, he was exiled after the uprising of 1846 by governmental authorities. He came with his wife to America, where he took up his residence in the Quaker city as a sculptor, under the name of Saunders.

In 1857 his wife, whom he dearly loved, died giving birth to twins, who also died. Deprived at one blow of his faithful companion and babes, the bereaved man only listlessly performed his daily work that he might gain a scanty livelihood.

At night began the work in which he put his heart. Never seeing him as of old, the neighbors grew curious about the "foreigner," as they called him, and prying eyes soon discovered that every night the man locked himself in his cellar, whence the sounds of hammer and chisel emanated.

"No doubt, he works late to make more money," said the curious. But the curious were wrong. Dinocowski was hewing out an image of his wife and children.

In a few months the monument was finished and placed over the grave of his loved ones. On one side of the pedestal appeared the words:

"We live in deeds, not years—in thoughts, not breaths—in feelings, not in figures on a dial, we should count time by heart throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the nobles, acts the best."

While on the back one reads in Latin: "Henry Dinocowski Saunders with his own hand made this ex-splendour of his most beloved wife, and consecrated it to her memory in 1858."

The tools with which he wrought and a likeness of the patriot's face are sculptured on other parts of the stone.

The most mysterious part of the story is that, when his task was finished, Dinocowski disappeared as completely as if he had never existed. Whether he killed himself, or whether he was shown his real name, was never known, and from that day to this no tidings have been heard of this unfortunate man.

Chung Chang's Secretary.

Li Hung Chang had a serious loss last spring. His American private secretary, J. W. Pethick, quit him—throwing up, it is understood, a very large salary. Pethick had been Karl Li's right-hand man for years, looking after his business and advising him in his foreign investments. In 1896 Pethick told Correspondent Curtis he had read more than 50 English, French and German books to the old man, translating them into Chinese as he went along.

Slam Consolation.

The only consolation some women have when their husbands are unfaithful is that they may have done worse if they had married some of their other beaux.—Washington (La.) Democrat.

THIS AND THAT.

Mushroom culture in cellars is a fad in Baltimore. A profit of $200 a year is figured out of a bed 15 feet square.

In the early days of this century many efforts were made to fasten hard points to pens of softer material. Bits of metal were often fastened as points to pens of glass, tortoise shell or horn.

It has always been the custom in Delaware for the governor to take the oath of office on an old Latin Bible, now so sacred a keepsake that it is kept in a fireproof case in the state library.

Juvenile smoking seems rather approved of that otherwise in Australia. Incredible though it may appear, they have already discussed the advisability of attaching smoking rooms to schools.

In the past ten years there has been an increase of 47 per cent. in the number of inmates in the Maryland penitentiary. During the same period the population of the state increased 14 per cent.

The rivers of the Emerald Isle have generally a dark color, owing to the fact that most of them are fed in their course flow through peat bogs or bays, which impart a dark hue to the water.

The council of St. Joseph, Mo., is considering the advisability of increasing the cost of hall posters. It censures from $50 to $500. It is thought by that means the practice whereby the walls and fences of that city are covered with unsightly posters may be discouraged.

So far the best emergency ration is one devised by American army officers. It consists of one pound of raw lean beef and one pound of bread, seasoned with salt and red pepper, eaten dry without cooking. One pound of the mixture sustains a soldier in good condition for 24 hours.

QUEER DINNER GUESTS.

Animals Have Sat at Table with Eccentric Men.

It was the custom of the earl of Bridgewater, who died in 1829, to dine with 15 dogs. Each animal, with a napkin round its neck, sat sedately in an armchair, behind which stood a servant ready to attend to its wants. The utmost decorum was observed, and should any dog transgress the rules of good breeding, it was banished for awhile from its master's table and, dressed in livery, compelled to take its meals in the servants' hall.

John Mytton, the eccentric squire of Halston, once asked a number of neighbors to meet at dinner a particular friend of his. He just came from abroad. They duly arrived, but the honored guest was late, and it was not until all were seated at table that the door opened and there entered a large, grizzly bear! A general stampede followed, and in less than a minute Mytton and his particular friend were left to finish the meal alone.

Not many years back cat parties were the vogue among certain cliques in Paris. A lady would give the entertainment, to which were bidden her friends' pets for whom a sumptuous meal was prepared, every dainty suitable to the feline palate being provided. This repast was, it is needless to say, done ample justice to, the cats being waited upon by their doting mistresses.

Last year an eccentric Austrian of noble family, gave a dinner in honor of a large panther that he had brought from the east. The animal, firmly secured by chains, crouched at table, and partook with evident zest of the good things provided.

This, however, is not the only "animal" dinner that this whimsical host has given, for in the early eighties he astonished his friends with invitations to dine with an elephant. The animal, however, turned out to be by no means a Jumbo, being indeed mere pigmy of a few months old, which, under the care of its keeper, behaved with the greatest propriety.

Lord Eskine, the celebrated lawyer, possessed a curious pet in a goose that he was wont to allow to roost at will about his chamber. Not infrequently, too, he would find in his company, and on one occasion some friends, who had been invited to dinner, were dumfounded when on sitting down to table a chair was placed for this "bird," which, during the repast, was treated in every respect as though it were on an equality with the other guests.—London Tri-Bits.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The formula is plainly printed on every bottle—hence you know just what you are taking when you take Grove's. Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called Tasteless Chill Tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

ALLEGED THIEF

Must Go Back To Cuba To Stand Trial.

Island Held To Be Foreign Territory By Unanimous Vote Of Supreme Court.

Justice Harlan, immediately after the sitting of the United States Supreme Court at Washington Monday, read the unanimous opinion of the court, in which it is held that C. F. W. Neely, the Cuban postal defaulter, can be extradited to Cuba for trial under previous charges preferred. The court held that Cuba is foreign territory, our only purpose in the war with Spain being to free the Cubans from Spanish domination. The decision was based upon the act of June 6, 1890, which act was held to be constitutional.

A Beautiful and Artistic Calendar. We have received from Robert Bonner's Sons, publishers of the Ledger Monthly, their beautiful calendar for 1901, which they are sending to all subscribers to their magazine for the current year. This calendar is most artistically arranged, beautifully designed, and attractively printed in twelve colors. It is in the form of three panels, the center panel representing the picture of an old man in his barn, husking corn. In his work he has found a red ear, and the artist depicts him holding the ear in one hand, and, with a far-away look in his eyes, dreaming again of his young manhood. Tender memories flash through his mind as the tears course their way down his furrowed cheeks. This reproduction is from a painting entitled "Memories of the Red Ear," by the famous artist, J. G. Brown, of the National Academy. The panel on the right is a reproduction from life of "A Hayseed," representing a young girl, clothed in the homely garb of the hayfield, with a wisp of hay between her lips, accentuating the beauty and roguishness of her exquisite face. The panel on the left is a portrait of "A Holland Belle" in her quaint Dutch costume, and is from the brush of the famous artist Carl Blecker. The Ledger Monthly is one of the foremost of the popular publications, and has deservedly gained the name of America's Great Family Magazine. Attention is called to the advertisement of the publishers in another column, headed "S1,000 Given Away." The publishers wish to secure the services of some bright person in this vicinity to take subscribers for the Ledger Monthly, and they offer for this service liberal compensation. Any of our readers who are interested should read the advertisement and write to Robert Bonner's Sons, publishers Ledger Monthly, Ledger Building, New York City, for particulars. Subscriptions for the Ledger Monthly are taken by all newsdealers and by the publishers of this paper.

TAKEN FROM NEGRO COUPLE

Had Been Given to Them By Her Sister Years Ago—She Is Disconsolate.

Union City, Tenn., Jan. 15.—Eugene A. Roberts, on the Tennessee side at Fulton, Ky., reported to county court several days ago while it was in session here, that a negro family at Fulton had a white girl that they were raising. County Judge Caldwell, instructed the Sheriff to have the girl brought here. Sheriff Finch sent Deputy Josh Adams after her and she is now at the jail in the care of the Sheriff and his wife.

When the girl was six years of age her mother died, four weeks later the father passed away, and within another month one of her sisters died. An older sister gave her to Rock Sisson, colored, and his wife. That was about seven years ago. The girl, whose name is Delia Vaughan, having celebrated her thirteenth birthday last June, according to her own statement. Her foster parents, who are well to do colored people, idolize her, and were very much averse to giving her up.

Rock and his wife came down early yesterday morning to see if they could not, by law, secure her again, and the parting between the colored woman and her adopted child was very touching, both shedding tears as though their hearts would break. The girl is very pretty and more than an average 13-year-old girl in intelligence. She is fair, with blue eyes and auburn hair, and very well developed. She calls Sisson and his wife "mammy and pappy," and in answer to a question of your correspondent stated that "mammy and pappy" had always been good to her, had never struck her a lick in their lives, and that she wanted to go back to them. She didn't want to live with the white people, and she broke down and wept bitterly. When told that friends had taken her away from her home, and would find her a better one, she replied that she wished her friends would attend to their own business and let her alone, and then she said, sorrowfully: "It is funny that they let me live there this long, and now come and take me away." They girl is in the fifth grade at school and well up in her studies. Judge Caldwell will endeavor to get her into the Industrial School at Nashville, or find her a home with some good family, unless Sisson, who is a porter in a Fulton grocery, again gets possession of her by law.

A Convention of Men.

The forthcoming Twentieth Annual State Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Kentucky, in Louisville, February 21-24, has been appropriately designated as "A Convention of Men to Consider Problems in Men's Lives." A strong and attractive program has been arranged by the State Executive Committee. The varied departments of the Association's activity will be presided by competent leaders of state and national reputation. Among the speakers will be Messrs. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation, New York; Richard C. Morse and Fred B. Smith, Secretaries of the International Committee, S. D. Gordon, Cleveland, O.; W. M. Wood, Chicago, Ill.; Frank H. Burt, St. Louis, Mo.; and Bishop C. P. Galloway, Jackson, Miss., besides many of the representative workers from the State.

Two hundred delegates from the city, railroad, student and county organizations are expected. There will also be a considerable delegation of young men and business men from several points in the State where Associations are not yet organized. The railroads will grant a reduced rate, and the Louisville and Nashville entertain all delegates. The Convention sessions will be held in the spacious Warren Memorial Presbyterian church. Full particulars, programs, credentials, etc., may be obtained from the nearest Association Secretary, or from Henry E. Roseaver, State Secretary, Fourth and Broadway, Louisville.

to the new-born century. Locomotives, steam whistles, exploding fireworks and a hundred other noises made the century in the agonies of death only too glad to die. Then came the distant rumble of the mid-night express and as its noise died away in the distance, the ear-splitting sounds suddenly ceased and the new month, the new year and the new century had begun. It was a solemn occasion and as the sounds ceased and his voice could be heard, Col. Bill Howell, who was the first to speak, turned to Col. J. O. Cooper and requested him to give him a chew of tobacco.

The rest of the night was spent in a manner befitting the occasion. Refreshments were served and when hilarity indulged in. After all hands had made a night of it, President Cooper called attention to the fact that it was time to go home and make the customary resolutions for the new year.

And the meeting broke up.

W. W. RADFORD, Assignee of GEO. W. ALLEN, Howell, Ky., Jan. 16, 1901.

MRS. HARRIET SUMMERS.

Devoted Christian Passes to the Great Beyond.

Mrs. Harriet Anthony Summers died at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of her son, Mr. W. D. Summers, five miles west of the city, as a result of a fracture of the hip, caused by a fall about two months ago. She was in the 92nd year of her age and was perhaps the oldest woman in the county. Mrs. Summers was the widow of William A. Summers, who died in 1857, and was a native of Sumner county, Tenn. She was married in 1827 and they moved to Christian county shortly afterward and settled on a farm on the Cadiz road, at which place Mrs. Summers had since resided.

She joined the Methodist church when only sixteen years old and had been a very devoted christian throughout her long life.

She was a lady universally esteemed for her innumerable acts of kindness and charity and was greatly beloved by a host of friends.

She leaves six children, W. D. Summers, of this county, J. E. Summers, of Cadiz, Mrs. A. C. Baker, of Houston, Tex., Mrs. M. C. Teer, of Clarksville, Mrs. R. C. Thurmond, of Gracely, and Mrs. J. O. Cooper, of this city.

Funeral services were conducted at her late residence Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. T. Rushing, of this city, and the interment took place in the family burying ground.

CHARLIE ROSS CASE.

Senator Plunkill Has Information Never Before Made Public.

Senator Plunkill, representing one of the New York City districts in the General Assembly of that State, has disclosed as he claims, information never before made public as to the kidnaping of Charlie Ross. The Senator says heavy rains were fastened about the neck of the kidnaped child and his body thrown into the bay to be no more seen forever. The Senator says the child was stolen by two New York river thieves and subsequently while on his deathbed Mosher, the principal in the kidnaping, undertook to tell the story really as it occurred, but just as he ventured to pronounce the name Ross he expired. The history of the stealing of the child is thus repeated:

On July 1, 1874, Charlie Ross, then four years old, was playing with his older brother Walter, in front of their home in East Washington lane, Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia. Two men in a light spring wagon, who had been seen to pass the house a number of times before, induced the boys to go with them "for a drive." They promised the children some candy and fireworks for the approaching Fourth. They would also visit "Aunt Susie," the men said. This was a fictitious personage invented for the occasion.

As the vehicle neared Palmer and Richmond streets Walter Ross became frightened and began to cry. One of the men gave him a quarter and told him to go and buy some fireworks in a store near by. When Walter returned the wagon had gone. Charlie Ross never appeared again.

"FAUST" TO-NIGHT.

Very Fine Performance Promised at Holland's Opera House.

Those who fail to witness the play of Faust at Holland's Opera House to-night will miss seeing the best entertainment that has come to Hopkinsville this season. Of the play the Kinselaer, (Ind.) Republican says:

"The much heralded Porter J. White Co. produced 'Faust' at Ellis' opera house last evening to standing room only. Goethe's masterpiece is one in which those of dramatic ability and the wizards of that subtle force, electricity, are afforded the opportunity for the highest display of their art, and the Porter J. White Company, possesses the necessary requisites produced Faust in a manner highly pleasing to a large audience which greeted them. This is undoubtedly the finest version of this play ever seen in a city of this size. The company were handicapped by lack of stage room for the immense amount of special scenery which they carry. Miss Olga Verne in the character of Marguerite was captivating in the extreme and the work of the entire company was excellent. Perhaps the highest compliment we can pay them is to remark that they can play to the capacity of the opera house any time they may return."

SEEKS LEGAL SEPARATION.

Mrs. Beazley Desires Divorce From Her Husband.

Mrs. Minnie Beazley by her next friend &c., on Wednesday, filed suit for divorce from her husband Hugh C. Beazley. The petition recites that they were married in this county on Dec. 28, '99, and plaintiff states that shortly thereafter the defendant took her on a trip to Nashville, and that while there he told her that he had no intention of living with her, and left her. She also alleges that he wrote her parents to the same effect.

Plaintiff charges neglect, refusal to provide and abandonment. She prays for an absolute divorce and asks that she be restored to her maiden name, Minnie M. Yonts.

Mr. Beazley has for some time been attending a Nashville Medical school.

MR. CLARK A CANDIDATE.

Wants to be County Clerk of Christian County.

In to-day's KENTUCKIAN appears the announcement of Mr. Claud R. Clark as a candidate for the office of County Clerk of Christian county and the attention of our readers is called to same.

Mr. Clark is a son of Esq. H. B. Clark, of Gracely, who represented this county in the Legislature a few years ago, and has been engaged in the grocery business in this city for several years.

He is one among the most popular business men of the city, and while a Republican in politics, is exceedingly popular with the voters of all parties. If successful in securing the nomination in the primary Feb. 9, Mr. Clark will make a strong race.

He would make the county an excellent official.

Uniontown Widow Marries a Birmingham Physician.

Wednesday morning Mrs. J. H. Hamner, of Uniontown, Ky., and Dr. D. O. Keen, of Birmingham, arrived in Nashville, from their respective homes and about 11 o'clock went to the residence of Rev. Wm. T. Manning, where they were quietly married. The ceremony was witnessed only by two members of Mr. Mannings' household. The bride and groom spent the day at the Maxwell House and at night left for their home at Birmingham, where the groom is a physician.

SUSPENDED ANIMATION.

Two Well Authenticated Cases In Indiana.

Brazil, Ind., Jan. 15.—The returning life of Mrs. Cyrus Taylor, of this county, while mourning friends were preparing her body for burial, recalls another case of suspended animation, where a body died to all intents and purposes and was placed in a coffin. Afterward he showed signs of life and was resuscitated, and he has since developed into a vigorous young man. Mrs. Taylor had been ill for some time and her death was anticipated. After her apparent death, her neighbors gave loving care to the body, dressing it in a robe and making all arrangements for the coming of and undertaker. After this had been done a smile was noticed hovering about Mrs. Taylor's lips, and while the spectators gazed on in astonishment, the woman suddenly opened her eyes and showed that life still remained. Restoratives were applied, and Mrs. Taylor may regain her normal strength. While she is still too weak to discuss her experiences, she says that she was fully conscious of what was being done, and she was fearful that she would be buried alive.

THIS AND THAT.

The United States contains nearly 6,000,000 separate farms. There is not much show for Hawaii for statehood. The registered vote for the islands is only 11,000. Among the thousands of bodies buried in the potter's field of New York there is not one of a Chinaman. In order to preserve goatskins from damage by moths in summer, dealers use powdered naphthalene, which they sprinkle over them while they are being stacked. Dr. Vosberg-Retkov, the well-known German economist, says that Americans have acted judiciously in establishing a system which is of the greatest advantage to themselves, but costly and inconvenient to their competitors. Thirteen colored women whose ages range from 30 to 75 are attending night school in Jersey City and taking their first lessons in reading. Several of the older women were born in slavery and some of these have become sufficiently accomplished to read a simple history of the United States with its record of the emancipation of their race. No century in history has been without severe earthquakes in southern Italy. Thousands have perished there. Vesuvius adds to the danger of that land, and the town of Torre del Greco, which lies under the mountain, may meet the fate of Pompeii and Herculaneum any day. It has been partially destroyed several times. During the 12 months ending June 30, 1901, the post office department expects to issue and sell 1,478,182 one-cent stamps, 3,109,834 two-cent stamps, 34,700,000 three-cent stamps, 62,500,000 four-cent stamps, 16,800,000 eight-cent stamps, 3,500,000 ten-cent stamps, 70,000 fifty-cent stamps, 3,000 $2 stamps and 4,000 $5 stamps. SPANISH SHEEPSKINS. Where the Untanned Hides Come From and How Prepared. Sheep are classified under the heads of lambs and sheep or ewes. Until the animal is one year old it is sold as a lamb. The skin of the lamb is used for making gloves and is classified into "firsts" and "seconds," according to the fineness of the grain and the number of defects in the skin. The skin of the Extremadura sheep is unsuitable for gloves and can only be used for inferior articles. In Millau and St. Julien, in France, in Yeovil, in England, and also in several parts of Germany there are large tanneries devoted to the preparation of the skins exported from Murcia, Catalonia and La Mancha. These tanneries, says a consular report, either directly or through commission firms, send a large proportion of their output to the United States, which is an important market for glove skins. When the animal is more fully grown its skin can no longer be used for making gloves, and it is then applied to the manufacture of fancy goods, bookbinding, etc. Sheepskins are prepared in two ways: When tanned with sumac they are used for making cigar cases, pocketbooks, purses, etc.; but when prepared for legging, aprons used by agricultural laborers, harness or anything that must be subjected to wear and tear, the skins are oak tanned. The former—i. e., those prepared with sumac—are extensively exported from Spain to Germany, whereas the latter find, or used to find, a good market in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. The manner in which the skin is removed from the carcass is as follows: A small hole is made in one of the hind legs of the animal; a strong strip of hellebore is then inserted into this little aperture and air is blown in until the carcass is well swollen. The belly is then split open from end to end and the skin carefully removed, if necessary with the help of a knife. The skins are collected by men who devote themselves exclusively to this work. After being exposed to the sun until a slight crust is formed on the flesh side they are stretched on ropes in the shade until completely dried, and are then ready for export. A New Protective Device. In some new bank buildings that are being erected in London it has been decided to trust neither police, private custodians nor safes. All walls connected with the money vaults are to have thin fashioned cannon balls loosely imbedded in them, the idea, of course, being that the rounded surface of the cannon balls will cause burglars to slip, and there will be no chance of picking the walls to pieces quickly enough for burglars' depredations.

Twenty Years Proof.

Tutt's Liver Pills keep the bowels in natural motion and cleanse the system of all impurities. An absolute cure for sick headache, dyspepsia, sour stomach, constipation and kindred diseases. "Can't do without them" R. P. Smith, Chilesburg, Va. writes I don't know how I could do without them. I have had Liver disease for over twenty years. Am now entirely cured. Tutt's Liver Pills

The grace of a girl, the red of a rose, the ripple of the water, are three great gifts of heaven.

Remedies. A Topeka man lost a small opal set out of his ring and went to the jeweler to have it replaced. Returning home he found the lost set and putting it in his mouth for safe keeping, hurried back to the jeweler's to have that set used instead of the new opal. Rushing into the store he said: "Say I found the old set, so don't use that new one." He attempted to remove the stone from his mouth, gave a gulp, looked sheepish, and said: "I guess you'll have to use the new stone." That man needed a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Sold by C. K. Wyly.

A SHREWD SCHEME.

Merchant Narrowly Escaped Aiding a Fall Breakdown. "Whenever I see that particular brand of canned peaches," said a New Orleans grocer to a Times-Democrat man, indicating a row of tins on the top shelf, "I am reminded of something very queer that happened here several years ago. One day in the summer of '96, if I remember rightly, a refined-looking woman of about 30, dressed in deep mourning, came into the store and bought a couple of cases of California peaches of the brand I have just pointed out. She had a cab and took them with her, and I thought no more of the incident until she returned next day, carrying the tins in her hand. 'I have a sick brother at—' she said, naming a small town in Alabama, and was intending to send him these peaches with a bundle of other things, yesterday. But, on second thought, I believe I will buy a few more delicacies and get you to ship them separately.' There was nothing peculiar about the request, and I assured her I would be glad to attend to the matter. She ordered four or five dollars' worth of different articles—jellies, olives, marmalade and so on—paid the bill and gave me her brother's name, directing the things to be sent to him in care of Capt. Somebody or Other, at the Alabama town which she mentioned before. As soon as she left I got out a box and began to pack up the consignment; but as soon as I came to the peaches I noticed that the two cans which she had returned were both slightly 'blown,' as we call it in the trade. In other words, the tops bulged outward a trifle, indicating that a little fermentation had been going on. Not wishing to send a sick man anything but the best, I set them aside and put in two fresh cans from the shelf. The box was shipped by the first express. Nearly six months after this episode," continued the grocer, with twinkling eyes, "we were cleaning out our old stock and ran across those two cans of peaches, which I picked up one of them carelessly, and my hand being wet, a piece of the label came off. You may imagine my surprise to see a lot of small saws soldered to the side of the tin, and on further examination we found that they completely encircled the can, and that the other was in exactly the same condition. In that I began to have a faint inkling of the truth and lost no time in making a few inquiries. I found that the Alabama captain was the sheriff of his county and the invalid brother had been one of his official guests. He was a burglar and had since been sent to prison for ten years. The scheme was pretty shrewd. In the first place, the sheriff would not be apt to be suspicious of a package of goods coming direct from a reputable business house, and even if he opened the cans before giving them to the prisoner, there would be nothing wrong inside. The crook must have been bitterly disappointed when he examined the substitutes that I sent. The saws, as we afterward found out, were highly tempered and could cut a steel bar like yellow pine. Who was the woman in black, did you ask? I have no idea; probably a sister, or wife, or sweetheart. I never laid eyes on her afterward."

ANTIQUEY OF AGRICULTURE.

Goes Back at Least to Time When Stone Implements Were Used. The origin of agriculture is lost in the mists of antiquity, says Prof. A. C. Hadden, in Knowledge. We know that in Neolithic times in Europe eight kinds of cereals were cultivated, besides flax, peas, poppies, apples, pears, bullace plums, etc. at the same time various animals were domesticated. Among these were horses, short-horned oxen, horned sheep, goats, two breeds of pigs and dogs. Prof. W. Boyd Dawkins says that evidence goes to show that these animals were not domesticated in Europe, but probably in the central plateau of Asia. He also thinks that agriculture arose in the south and east of Europe, and spread gradually to the center, north and west. A hunting population is often very averse to even the slightest amount of work that agriculture requires in a tropical country. The soil holds good, as a rule, for pastoral communities. In all cases a powerful constraint is necessary to force these peoples into ungenial employment. Fate is stronger than will, and at various periods, in different climates, hunters and herders have been forced to till the soil.

"A SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN"

Mr. Clement Proves Himself Master of His Profession.

Gen. Joseph Carroll, of South Carolina, is not only the hero of Mr. Clement's "A Southern Gentleman," a jaunty, idyllic romance, but he is the head and front, the central figure, the life, the motive, the color and the character of the play. His surroundings are fitting and artistically appropriate, but after all, they are but the setting of the jewel, a condition that is aptly suggested in the title of the play. Joseph Carroll is distinguished no less for his gentleness than for his bravery. His splendid qualities are so ingrained in his nature as innate qualities that he cannot help displaying them, this being illustrated in the care he takes to avoid wounding the feelings of his servant. While his heart is fairly consumed by a great queenless love, he would let it break rather than bring pain or sorrow to the woman he loves. In the portrayal of this beautiful character Mr. Clement proves himself a master of his profession. The graceful repose of manner and the unforced courtesy with which he meets his deadly enemy, whom he heartily despises, were characteristic of the cool-headed, stout-hearted old school gentleman, who would never for an instant hesitate between the alternatives of death and dishonor.

Mr. Clement will present "A Southern Gentleman" at Holland's Opera House next Monday evening, January 21.

ANNUAL DINNER.

Bishop Dudley Will Respond to a Toast.

The New York Confederate Veteran Camp will hold its eleventh annual dinner in honor of the memory of Gen. Robert E. Lee in the grand banquet hall at the Waldorf-Astoria to-day. An interesting feature will be the presence of many ladies, who will join in the festivities and songs. The popularity of this form of entertainment was conclusively proven by the signal success attending last year's dinner of the New York veterans. Bishop Thomas U. Dudley, of Kentucky, will respond to a toast, and Mr. Gordon McCabe, of Virginia, will also be present and respond. Both are veterans of the war.
